Job Description

Sector: IT / Team: Digital Service and Enterprise Service Management / Locations: QC-MTL / Fall 2025 Internship

Are you currently studying computer science and eager to expand your knowledge on a widely-used industry platform through a university-accredited internship? Interested in discovering the ITIL v4 methodology? Want to contribute to a DEVOPS-mode team? This internship is for you! If you still have doubts, read on!

We are currently looking for a ServiceNow Developer Intern to join the IT Service Operations and Delivery team.

Wondering what ServiceNow is? It's a widely-used platform that helps manage various IT practices, such as incident, request, and problem management. Keep in mind that the knowledge you gain on this platform will benefit you throughout your career!

What does a ServiceNow Developer Intern do? Here's a summary:

- We will need your problem-solving skills to execute necessary corrective actions to restore service in case of incidents, handle service requests, and help establish root causes of problems;
- We will need your technical skills to perform various tasks required in a maintenance framework (monitoring, production surveillance), as well as in the evolution or delivery of IT systems under the team's responsibility;
- We will need your writing skills to produce and maintain technical documentation such as procedures, operation guides, intervention plans, scripts and modules, test plans, etc.;
- We will need your communication skills to participate in daily stand-ups with the entire team to review activity progress and validate support needs.

A few key points about the ServiceNow platform (back end):

- Development is done in JavaScript and allows for complementing the platform's various "no-code" applications;

- The team also supports other applications developed in C# that interface with ServiceNow APIs;

Job Requirements

You must be proficient in JavaScript and C# (.Net).

Citizenship Requirement      N/A
